

Our Students

The Stanford GSE offers several Master's Programs; each focuses on a different aspect of education.

Education Data Science (EDS)

Graduates are prepared to apply cutting-edge data science skills and techniques to education research and practice.

Inaugural cohort graduates in March 2023

Summer internship required

International Comparative Education (ICE)

Graduates have completed a rigorous research project and received extensive training focused on international education, development, and policy.

*Cohorts graduate in August

Learning Design and Technology (LDT)

Graduates have the creativity and skills to design innovative learning solutions that employ emerging technologies.

*Cohorts graduate in August

Two quarters of internship required

Policy, Organization, and Leadership Studies (POLS)

Graduates have obtained the knowledge and hands-on experience to effectively lead a wide variety of education enterprises.

*Cohorts graduate in June

Internship optional

Stanford Teacher Education Program (STEP)

Graduates are well-prepared to be effective teachers at the elementary and secondary levels.

*Cohorts graduate in June

Discover more about alumni outcomes in our annual reports.

Ways to Connect

Share Open Positions

- Post education-related opportunities in our free job portal.
- Reach out to edcareers@stanford.edu to have a position featured in the weekly newsletter we send to students and alumni.

Host an Intern

- Most programs require students to complete an internship.
- Reach out to edcareers@stanford.edu to share internship opportunities that are a great fit for our students.

Attend Career Events

- EdCareers partners with BEAM, Stanford Career Education to host Education or Public Service career fairs each year.
- Visit the BEAM website for information about upcoming events.