"Art embodies how cultural communities construct meaning. Art can tell stories...[and] offer many entryways into social concerns and concepts to explore social life, to explore concepts through hands-on experiences, making connections between concepts and [our] own lived experience explicit and accessible...When art integration happens through inquiry, students do not simply represent academic content using art methods and materials; they connect their topic to big ideas, and they do it through an art practice that involves methods, tools, and thinking from various disciplines—such as observation, critical analysis, synthesis, questioning, connecting, and reflection. In art integration based on inquiry, learners explore content and connections through an organic, yet intentional, process that welcomes improvisation and invention." – Julia Marshall

WELCOME & OVERVIEW

Our course is designed as a creative arts-based inquiry into history and the social sciences. Over the next 10 sessions together, we hope to explore this critical question: How do the visual arts and arts integrated learning drive inquiry and investigation into history, social science, and social justice issues, fostering transformative, inclusive and equitable classroom communities?

In this class, we will consider frameworks, instructional approaches, and tools for the study of history and social science in the elementary curriculum, and also experience the visual arts and arts integration as powerful pathways to teaching and learning history and social science. We'll discover how art and visual literacy support academic inquiry and critical thinking skills to help students build content comprehension and connections across the curriculum. We'll explore how to foster vibrant, equitable learning communities in culturally and linguistically diverse classrooms. We'll support candidates' understanding of the social issues that impact their own and their students' identities, cultures and communities through the lens of history and the arts. Through "studio" art experiences, project-based learning, collaborative thinking routines and group discussion, we aim to inspire inquiry, imagination and surprise. Be ready to get curious, get engaged, think deeply, and have fun!

ENDURING UNDERSTANDINGS

- Creative arts-based inquiry develops students' foundational cognitive, social, emotional, and physical capabilities and strengthens students' abilities to express their ideas, opinions, and emotions around social issues.
- Creative arts-based inquiry deepens students' understanding of history, social science, and social justice, and the impact these have on students' everyday lives.
- Stories and storytelling help empower students with the empathy and critical lens necessary to understand and humanize themselves and others in the context of community - past, present and future.
- Project-based learning and a continuous cycle of inquiry cultivates student collaboration, authentic learning, and connection with the real world.

ESSENTIAL QUESTIONS

- What is the role and value of the arts, history and social science in our lives, our classrooms, our communities, our world?
- How might we use art as a medium for historical/social science inquiry?
- What pedagogical methods and tools can we use to engage our students in social and historical inquiry?
- How can we learn the stories a community tells about its people and place?
- What can we learn from how communities have responded to social injustices in the past and present?

- How might we help students emotionally navigate and make meaning of the complexities and challenges in our world?
- How might I reflect, communicate and engage with my colleagues through creative arts-based inquiry into history and the social sciences?

Our class will mainly - but not always - take place on Tuesday afternoons. We have some variability in our schedule and room locations (see in red above) in order to accommodate no classes during the Independent Student Teaching window.

ASSIGNMENTS

Final Project: Arts-Integrated Design Challenge

There is one final project for this course: an arts-integrated design challenge. You will work with a small group of STEP colleagues to create: 1) a unit blueprint; 2) a research packet of primary/secondary sources based on a chosen historical/social justice issue; 3) a work of art; 4) a team presentation; and 5) a brief independent reflection. You will complete it in stages over the duration of the course, with workshop time built into class. A complete project description will be shared separately on Canvas and walked through in class.

COURSE GRADING

For Spring Quarter of 2023-24, this course will be graded based on the following components:

- 1. Final Project: Arts-Integrated Design Challenge = 70% of course grade
- 2. Attendance & Quality of In-Class Participation in Small & Whole Group Work = 30% of course grade

An “A” grade is based on a demonstration of the following:

- evidence of understanding and ability to apply concepts, content, and practices central to this course
- strong depth of thinking, creative contributions, and relevance of your work to course content and discussion
- individual contribution to the collaborative Final Project
- meeting the guidelines for the Final Project

IMPORTANT NOTES

Professional Attendance & Participation

Both the arts and social sciences facilitate the growth of a community where creative ideas and opinions can be expressed and heard openly; where there is room to agree and disagree, and where collaboration is valued. In this spirit, we welcome you. We respect the different backgrounds, assets, knowledge and interests you bring to this class, and our shared goal is to develop a culture of mutual trust and respect. We see mistakes as opportunities to rethink and try again to resolve a particular challenge or problem, and we encourage you to engage and persist, stretch and grow!

We maintain high expectations for your learning and growth. We expect you to be on time and present for all classes, turn in all components of the Final Project, and be actively engaged and constructive participants in class discussions and activities. If something prevents you from attending \(all or part of\) class or meeting the assignment deadlines, please communicate with us as far as possible in advance so we can work with you to come up with a plan. Because our class is designed to center hands-on learning and collaborative teamwork, this also supports us to make any necessary adjustments that would impact your colleagues and the learning of the community.

Readings and Class Activities

There are some predetermined course readings that will serve as anchor texts for us. However, in order to provide material that is responsive to the evolving contexts of our immediate lives and broader world, readings might at times be supplemented or substituted. Any changes will be communicated in a timely manner so that you can be prepared for class. Always check Canvas for the latest prework/readings. Texts will include some longer readings, but we also offer several 1-2 pg hand-outs, video recordings and podcasts, considering your assignment load and use of multiple modalities for processing information.

While there will be some discussion focused on readings, our class is designed to prioritize active experiences and explorations into the arts and history/social science that simulate what you can use with your own students. For this reason, many readings will serve solely to build important background knowledge and provide context for the learning activities. Even though we may not discuss every text explicitly in every class, each one still plays an important role in your ability to engage in in-class activities and for your overall grasp of this course's Enduring Understandings and Essential Questions.

Stanford Honor Code

All Stanford students are expected to follow the Stanford Honor Code and Fundamental Standard, as noted in the STEP Handbook and Stanford Student Guide.

Students with Disabilities

Students who may need an academic accommodation based on the impact of a disability must initiate the request with the Office of Accessible Education (OAE). Professional staff will evaluate the request with required documentation, recommend reasonable accommodations, and prepare an Accommodation Letter for faculty dated in the current quarter in which the request is being made. Students should contact the OAE as soon as possible since timely notice is needed to coordinate accommodations. The OAE is located at 563 Salvatierra Walk; phone: 723-1066; web site <http://studentaffairs.stanford.edu/oae>
