COURSE DESCRIPTION

“Decisions about teaching for biliteracy are often based on socio-political power relationship between English and Spanish rather than on research or developmentally appropriate practices”
(Brisk and Harrington, 2007; Escamilla; 2000, Freeman, 2004).

The STEP Bilingual Authorization program strives to prepare bilingual educators who:

1) design educational spaces that celebrate students’ bi/multilingual identities and embrace the dynamic linguistic practices of their bi/multilingual communities;
2) leverage students’, families’, and communities’ linguistic and cultural resources to inform developmentally, culturally, and linguistically appropriate instructional decisions;
3) prepare students to engage with multiple audiences across two languages and multiple modalities; and
4) understand how to support the development of students’ literacy and content knowledge in two languages.

The STEP Bilingual Authorization program is animated by the following key principles, which drive our work in the preparation of teachers for bilingual programs and which are evident in the outcomes of our program graduates:

● All students come to school with rich and dynamic linguistic repertoires.
● Bilingual teachers should explore students’ linguistic repertoires in order to identify both strengths and areas for growth.
● Bilingual instruction is optimal when grounded in a robust understanding of students’ existing linguistic strengths, which can be practically leveraged to support learning in both languages.
● The overarching goal of bilingual education should be to prepare students to effectively engage with multiple audiences or communities—to read, write, listen, and speak across two languages with multiple audiences in mind.

In this course, we aim to disrupt this imbalance as we explore theories, research, and methods related to the effective instruction of Spanish-English students in grades K-8 in different bilingual settings. This course is designed to prepare elementary teacher candidates who are pursuing a Bilingual Authorization and plan to teach in Spanish-English bilingual programs. EDUC 264E takes into account the state’s required teacher preparation standards for bilingual authorization in the areas of language, culture, theory and methodology. Taught primarily in Spanish, this course will support teacher candidates in drawing upon their full linguistic repertoire dynamically and creatively.
To that end, our work will focus on exploring four main ideas and their underlying complexities:

- How do we construct educational spaces that celebrate students bilingual identities and embody the fluid linguistic practices of bilingual communities?
- How do we leverage students, families, and communities’ linguistic and cultural resources to make developmentally, culturally, and linguistically appropriate instructional decisions?
- How do we develop students’ literacy and content knowledge in two languages?
- How do we dismantle linguistically racialized hierarchies to build inclusive learning environments?

The course includes an emphasis on the analysis and assessment of Spanish-speaking students’ literacy and language development through an in-depth study of one child culminating in a learning profile showcasing their cultural, community, and linguistic assets. Teacher candidates engage in cross-linguistic writing analysis to tailor learning objectives to students’ language proficiency and developmental levels in both languages. They also gain practice and guidance on planning lessons that build space for students to draw upon their full linguistic repertoire flexibly, highlight transferability, and promote learning in two languages with the goals that all students have opportunities to become bilingual, biliterate, and bicultural. Additionally, through readings, discussion and assignments, teacher candidates unpack current issues in bilingual education including the commodification of bilingualism, institutional abelism within bilingual programs, and manifestations of anti-blackness within bilingual spaces as they develop the skills and understandings to dismantle linguistically racialized hierarchies in their future classrooms.

COMMITMENT TO STUDENT WELLNESS

We are each starting the 2023-2024 academic year in unique circumstances, likely not fully recovered or restored from the stresses of the past 3 years and facing ongoing uncertainties, responsibilities, and emotions. Especially under such conditions, I appreciate your active engagement in our course and will do everything I can do to support you. Without requesting or expecting details of your situation, I will do everything I can to ensure your course learning is productive and enjoyable. However, it is of the most importance that you communicate as early as possible if anything arises so I can be responsive to your needs.

Of note, current stressful events and/or mental health concerns may lead to diminished academic performance, reduce your ability to participate in daily life, or trigger a broad range of feelings. If you or someone you know is feeling overwhelmed, depressed, and/or in need of support, services are available. You can learn more about the broad range of confidential mental health services available on campus here.

HONOR CODE

Students are expected to adhere to Stanford’s honor code. According to the Office of Judicial Affairs (OJA) website, “For purposes of the Stanford University Honor Code, plagiarism is defined as the use, without giving reasonable and appropriate credit to or acknowledging the author or source, of another person’s original work, whether such work is made up of code, formulas, ideas, language, research, strategies, writing or other form(s).” For further information, please consult the OJA website.

STUDENTS WITH DOCUMENTED DISABILITIES

Disabled students are a valued and essential part of our learning community and I welcome you to our class. If you experience disability, please register with the Office of Accessible Education (OAE). Professional staff will evaluate your needs, support appropriate and reasonable accommodations, and prepare an Academic Accommodation Letter for faculty. To get started, or to re-initiate services, please visit oae.stanford.edu.
SUPPORT FOR ALL LEARNERS:
This course is designed to support your development as a professional educator. As educators, we are tasked with ensuring the success of ALL learners. Please let me know if the need arises for additional resources or support, and we will work together to develop a plan for success.

ATTENDANCE AND PARTICIPATION
If you must miss a session, let me know as soon as possible so that you can complete all missed work prior to the next session. As valuable members of our learning community, your promptness, engagement, and attendance at each class session is essential. Engagement looks differently for everyone but requires us to think critically, question our assumptions, actively listen, and step up and step back in.

ASSIGNMENTS

Student Profile (embedded with LPP Linguistic Repertoires assignment)

Due Date: TBD

Objectives:
- Identify cultural, community, and linguistic assets of bilingual students
- Promote authentic family/caretaker/community engagement opportunities

You will identify a student in your placement and highlight their cultural, community, and linguistic assets in the form of a case study. This assignment will provide you with the opportunity to interview the student, members of their family/caretakers and their current teacher. This assignment will help you understand the myriad reasons why families/caretakers enroll students in bilingual programs while promoting authentic family/community engagement opportunities.

Student Writing Analysis

Due date: TBD

Objectives:
- Identify students academic strengths and stretches by conducting a cross-linguistic analysis of students writing using the rubrics from Literacy Squared
- Tailor learning objectives to students language proficiency and make developmentally, culturally, and linguistically appropriate instructional decisions

For this assignment, you engage in cross-linguistic analysis to tailor learning objectives to students’ language proficiency and make developmentally, culturally, and linguistically appropriate instructional decisions.

Dynamic Bilingualism
Due date: TBD

Objective
- Plan a read aloud that draws upon the principles of dynamic bilingualism²
  - Utilizing language dynamically
  - Engaging in meaning making by collaborating to construct meaning
  - Utilizing the following biliteracy strategies strategically to comprehend the text
    - Drawing upon personal experiences and cultural knowledge
    - Displaying comprehension and vocabulary strategies
    - Employing metalinguistic strategies

A planning template will be provided for this assignment

A NOTE ABOUT READINGS
Each of the readings was carefully selected to provide a different perspective, unearth new ideas, and link together important topics in the field of bilingual education. My hope is that in reading, debating, and discussing these ways of enacting bilingualism you will begin to construct your own ideologies and envision your own transformative practices. I urge you to use the focus questions as a guide for making sense of new ideas and come to class ready to link theory to practice and envision equitable classrooms that build bilingual learners.
